

Name: Mak Kong Ming, Daniel

Class: 6A

The Endangered Animals

Endangered species are animals that may soon disappear from the world.

Chinese White Dolphin is one of the most endangered animals in Hong Kong. One of the reasons that they are endangered is because of water pollution. People throw rubbish in the sea and make the water dirty. Most fishes will die because of water pollution. It will make the Chinese White Dolphins hard to find food. Another reason is land reclamation. People use a lot of land to build houses. Therefore, the white dolphins will lose their habitats.

There are some suggestions for the government to save the white dolphins. The government should stop land reclamation at the places where the dolphins live. They can also educate people to save the dolphins. They can establish laws to protect the dolphins. For example, the government can establish laws to stop hunting endangered animals such as the white dolphins. We can also keep the sea clean by not throwing any rubbish into the sea. Besides, we shouldn't go fishing near the place where the dolphins live.